Uniform Civil Code and Dr. B.R. Ambedkar: An Analysis

Krittibas Datta

"I personally do not understand why religion should be given this vast, expansive jurisdiction, so as to cover the whole of life and to prevent the legislature from encroaching upon that field."

– Dr. B.R. Ambedkar

Introduction

Dr. B.R. Ambedkar's contribution to the Indian Constitution is undoubtedly of the highest order. He was not only the man of age and maker of the Constitution of India but also the creator of social justice and betterment of the downtrodden. He spent his whole life for the betterment of the poor, exploited, untouchables and troubled classes. This intellectual man has fought all his life for the solution of important problems of contemporary India. Ambedkar and the Uniform Civil Code (UCC) are much closed to any angle of discussion. He had played very important role in the Constituent Assembly debates on Uniform Civil Code and the Hindu Code Bill. The debate for a Uniform Civil Code, with its diverse implications and concerning secularism in the country, is one of the most controversial issues in twenty-first century Indian politics. The major problems for implementing it are the country's diversity and religious laws, which are not only differ sect-wise, but also by community, caste and region. In present, the Uniform Civil Code has become an important issue in Indian society and politics. Women's rights groups have said that this issue is only based on their rights and security, irrespective of its politicisation. In the country, demanding a Uniform Civil Code can be seen negatively by religious authorities and secular sections of society
